SATURDAY DECEMBER 30, 1871.

DEATH OF ROBERT J. BRECKINRIDGE, SR.
Dr. Robert James Breckinridge, the eminent Presbyterian divine, died at his residence in Danville, Ky., at 5 P. M., Wednesday, 27th December, after a protracted illness.

Such was the brief telegraphic announcement, in the morning papers of Thursday, of the loss, by Kentucky, of one of her greatest and most distinguished sons. At the time of his death, Dr. Breckinridge was a Professor in the Theological Seminary at Danville; but for many years—in fact, throughout a long and useful, and conspicuous life—he had been everywhere regarded as one of the foremost intellects of the State, ranking full high with our Clays, Crittendens, Rowans, Metcalles, Prestons, and Marshalls.

His father, Hon. John Breckinridge, was an eminent lawyer and statesman, a Senator in Congress, and Attorney General of the United States in the Cabinet of Mr. Jefferson, and died in 1806. His mother, Mary Hopkins Cabell, was of the well-known and worthily distinguished Virginia family of that name. Robert J. Breckinridge, the subject of this sketch, the fourth son of these parents, was born at Cabell's Dale, Fayette county, Kentucky, on the 8th March, 1800, and was therefore, nearly 72 years old at the time of his decease. He was educated at Princeton, Yale, and Union Colleges—graduating at the latter, when he was but nineteen years old. He then prepared himself thoroughly for the profession of law, which he practiced in this State from 1823 to 1831. During that time he was repeatedly elected to a seat in the General Assembly. In 1829 he joined the Old Presbyterian Church, his ancestors having been devoted adherents of that faith ever since the period of the Reformation, three and a half centuries ago. In 1832 he was ordained Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Baltimore, in which position he continued until 1845, winning, during that stirring time, a wide renown for his power and eloquence as a pulpit orator and as a theological writer and religious controversialist.

After thirteen years diligent and eminently successful service as Pastor of the Baltimore Church, Dr. Breckinridge was elected President of Jefferson College, Pennsylvania, which post he held for two years, at the same time being Pastor of a church in a neighboring village. In 1847 he returned to his native Kentucky to assume the pastorate of the First Presbyterian Church at Lexington, and soon after became Superintendent of Public Instruction for the State at large. After six years' service in the able administration of these charges, he resigned them in 1853 in consequence of being elected by the Legislature to the Professorship of Exegetical, Didactical and Polemic Theology in the Seminary at Danville, and the same year removed to the latter place, where he continued to reside to the close of a busy, brilliant, well-spent, and most Christian life.

Dr. Breckinridge has participated largely in the religious, moral, and philanthropic discussions and movements—with an occasional dash into the field of politics and statesmanship—of the last forty years. While residing in Baltimore, he edited "The Literary and Religious Magazine" and "The Spirit of the Nineteenth Century." His discussions with the champions of the Roman Catholic faith and practice, and the Papacy, during that bustling period, will be remembered by many of our older readers as among the most brilliant passages and triumphant achievements of his splendid career as a polemic. He was elected to nearly every General Assembly of his church after he entered the ministry; and took an active part in all the discussions and legislation of that learned and venerable body. At the disruption of the Presbyterian Church, he steadfastly adhered to the old landmarks, in opposition to all innovation. At the outbreak of our civil war, he espoused the cause of the North, and took a decided stand in favor of the perpetuation of the Union. His opposition to the course pursued by a vast majority of the Southern people, was exceedingly embittered, if not acrimonious, exhibiting itself on a memorable occasion soon after the war, in a Synod or General Assembly of the church at St. Louis—there being, in his view, no conceivable excuse or palliation for the "heresy of secession."

Unquestionably, Robert J. Breckinridge was in many respects one of the most remarkable men that this age has produced or known. His genius was as versatile and brilliant as it was solid and profound. His elaborate defense of the constitutional rights of the South and of slavery, in a couple of letters addressed to the Hon. William H. Seward, in 1851, was a magnificent vindication of a wronged and outraged people, and attracted universal attention. And, it is remembered of him, that in 1857, he won the prize for an essay on "Improved Modes of Agriculture," which was awarded without knowledge of the author's name, and although many prominent agriculturists contested. He was as fond of farming as he was of theological or political disputation, and knew all the points of an animal as thoroughly as the most experienced stockbreeder. He was a powerful speaker, and a finished writer; both his speaking and writing being ever informed with a power and a glow, that never failed to electrify if they did not convince. He was the founder of the common school system of Kentucky, and the fame of the Danville Seminary is due almost solely to him. He is the author of a couple of interesting volumes of "Travels in Europe," besides a great number of tracts, essays, letters, &c., all bearing the vigorous impress of his peculiar and powerful genius. But, the great works of his religious or ministerial life, on which his fame as a theologian will chiefly rest in the future, are two remarkable volumes, the first, entitled "The Knowledge of God Objectively Considered," published in 1857, and considered by many the ablest work of the century on systematic theology; the second, "The Knowledge of God Subjectively Considered," which appeared more recently, but which will, doubtless, in due time, take its place by the side of the former volume.

But, we cannot do justice to the great departed in an article like this. That task we must leave to the pen of his biographer. Take him for all in all, Robert J. Breckinridge was one of the acknowledged giants of his time—a giant in intellect, a giant in philanthropy, a giant in the sacred apostleship of a Christian Church.

BEAM VS. NOTE.

A band of Newark, New Jersey ruffians, recently entered a Methodist Church in that city during divine service, and, with horrid blasphemies and ritual songs, broke up the service, and drove the congregation out of doors." This item is taken from an ultra New York Radical journal, and with hundreds of other proofs daily furnished from that section—not forgetting the Indiana Ku-Klux—plainly proves that our dear, pious, kind-hearted Northern brethren, while greatly distressed about the note in our eyes, are magnanimously oblivious of the beam with which their own optics are so deeply afflicted. Such selfishness and deep, disinterested solicitude for the welfare of others, while themselves suffering from all sorts of violence and crime, are rarely witnessed in these degenerate days, and cannot be too much commended by a deeply suffering yet sincerely grateful people.

Boss Tweed has strangely disappeared. He vanished from mortal sight in New York three or four days ago, and the detectives find it utterly impossible to find any trace of him. 'Twould be funny indeed, were it not also bad for the ends of justice, if the old cornorator were now to make his escape beyond seas so that the outraged law could not reach him, after all the fuss and furious clamor that have been made over his astounding villainies. We hope, when the law finally takes hold of those other and greater Tweeds at Washington, that the officers of justice will manage better than they have just done in the case of the New York scoundrels. The time is surely coming, and it behooves them to learn wisdom from their present experience, and be prepared to hang on to, and hold for final trial, the head-devils of all the official corruption in this country, when once they have got the gyes on them.

With a majority of Republicans, so called, the French National Assembly have begun to throw further restrictions around the freedom of the press. It is to be feared that the Republicans of France, like their namesakes of this country, do not deserve their name. Even President Thiers has grown exceedingly timorous and shaky on the giddy heights of power, and made a long speech the other day in favor of curtailing the liberty of the press! This comes with an exceeding ill grace from a statesman who is a journalist by profession, and who won his way to power and fame by the indispensable aid of the press.

From General Echols, one of the directors of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, who has been charged with looking after the interests of that company in Kentucky, we learn that its prospects are in every respect flattering. The division in West Virginia from Huntington, near the mouth of Sandy, ninety-five miles eastward, has been completed and is in good running order. The Lexington and Big Sandy road is under contract form Lexington to Mt. Sterling, on the whole of which division work is being prosecuted vigorously. By early spring the remainder of the road will be put under contract. The city bonds of Lexington have been issued upon subscription account, and General Echols has disposed of a number of them to citizens of Lexington at 92.

It is authoritatively intimated from Washington City that the next Republican National Convention will be held in Philadelphia, and all the journals of Porkopolis are shedding salt tears over the hopes so long and so tenderly cherished that they were to have that and all other possible National Conventions in their city, now apparently blasted. Our journal says to the Porkopolians in substance: "I told you so; I told you if you didn't hurry up and build some real fine and good hotels, you'd lose all those profitable National Conventions, political and otherwise; and here you see I am proved by this melancholy announcement from Washington to be a true prophet. Alas! alas! for the glory of the Stearine Queen."

Gen. Rosecrans believes that the Cincinnati Southern Railroad can be built and equipped at a cost of not more than eighteen or twenty thousand dollars per mile. If he is correct, then the whole 333 miles from Cincinnati to Chattanooga can be built and put in operation at a great deal less than the stereotyped estimate of ten millions.

Whittaker, the Bowling Green, Ohio, P. M., has been caught embezzling money over funds. Whit is only imitating, in a small way, the illustrious examples set him by his Republican superiors at Washington—M. C.'s and M. G.'s as well as P. M.'s.

General John W. Finnell, of Louisville, the efficient and liberal-minded president of the Mississippi Valley Life Insurance Company, has resigned.

POLITICAL.

The Albany Argus explains the Radical position on the question of punishing official frauds exactly. It is this: "Punish Tweed, Connelly, Hall, all who are suspected of being Democrats. Deal out to them the most arbitrary doses of the civil and criminal law, but keep your hands off our Republican robbers."

The Indianapolis Sentinel says: "Noble county, Ohio, with a population of twenty thousand people, is well worthy of the name it bears. There is not a saloon in the whole county, there is not a case on the criminal docket, and not a person has been arrested for a whole year on a criminal charge. There were only five law suits last year, and if hadn't been for a meddling lawyer, three of these would not have been recorded. The county gave a Democratic majority of two thousand eight hundred and forty last fall."

The Cincinnati Commercial sometimes strikes a vein that pans out well, as in the following brief paragraphs:

Charles Sumner occasionally puts a great deal of meaning in a few words. Brooks struck him over the head with his cane because there was no other way of replying to his speech. Sumner sent Stanton one word: "Stick," and he stuck. He called the report that General Grant made to Andy Johnson on the condition of the South, "white-wash," and the report has disappeared under that epithet. And there was a great deal in the sentences with which he introduced the resolutions proposing an amendment to the Constitution limiting Presidential eligibility to a single term. He said:

"Sir, that is the initial point of the civil service reform; that is the first stage in the great reform. The scheme of the President is the play of Hamlet without Hamlet. I propose by the amendment that I offer to see that Hamlet be brought into the play."

Civil service reform, as seen in Washington, seems to mean that everybody who is in office, Grant and all, shall remain. It is a nice thing, and they have a pretty name for it.

Grant's mail Callender, who had charge of the national bank in New York, has been arrested, and will, no doubt, be convicted for receiving bribes from the bank officers to allow them to carry on a loose business. The bank examiner was one of the best safeguards of the national banks. It was his duty to examine their accounts, not at stated periods, but whenever he thought the public interest demanded it, and if he discovered anything wrong to report the fact, and close any shaky concern. But, alas, greenbacks were omnipotent. He could not resist their influence, and was forced to wink at the frauds of the banks that should have been closed long since. Well may Senator Bayard, of Delaware, say: "After the exposure of Callender, the bank examiner, public confidence in the whole national bank system has been shaken."

Louisville Ledger.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?—Is GRANT ALSO A DRINKING MAN?—The Washington Star of Wednesday last says, "President Grant has had another one of those attacks. He could not see visitors. Benzine on the brain is a sad affliction."

THE NEW TURNPIKE PROJECT.

EDITOR YEOMAN: I think it is now plain that a large majority of the people of this county are in favor of the adoption of the new turnpike project brought before the last session of the court of claims by Dr. Williams, of Bridgeport. That proposition is to appropriate $1,500 a mile for all turnpikes hereafter to be built, to the extent of not more than 25 miles on either side of Kentucky river; two miles of each pike being first built before the appropriation can be drawn; after that, on the completion of each half mile; the whole scheme being so guarded as to guarantee justice to the people of each section of the county, and secure the county treasury from imposition.

The people understand and approve the proposition; not a single note of objection has been heard from any quarter, and it is but fair to conclude that the members of the court of claims will feel it incumbent on them, at their next session (next Monday, I believe), to adopt and put it in operation as soon as may be practicable.

FRANKFORT, December 26th, 1871.

THE GENEVA CONFERENCE.

The great case of the United States vs. Great Britain was presented to the Court of Arbitration, at Geneva last Monday, by Hon. J. Bancroft Davis. Our first claim against that nation is for the direct losses growing out of the depredations by the Confederate war vessels. The loss to the United States by such vessels is set forth, with the name of every merchantman destroyed. The following is the summary:

By the Alabama	$6,547,699 86
By the Shenandoah	6,486,320 21
By the Boston	400 00
By the Sumter	19,695 83
By the Chickamauga	95,654 85
By the Tallahassee	539,955 55
By the Florida	3,698,609 24
By the Georgia	383,976 50
By the Nashville	69,536 70
For losses for increased war premiums	1,120,795 15
By the Retribution	29,234 51
By the Saltillo	5,540 00
Total	$19,821,428 61

The Alabama destroyed 58 vessels; the Boston, 1; the Chickamauga, 3; the Florida, 38; the Georgia, 5; the Nashville, 1; the Retribution, 2; the Saltillo, 1; the Shenandoah, 40; the Sumter, 3; the Tallahassee, 17. Total vessels destroyed, 165.

THE SENATORIAL ELECTION—WHAT THE DEMOCRATIC JOURNALS SAY.

While we entertain the highest regard for the talent, worth, and energy of his principal competitor for the office—Hon. J. B. Beck—we feel that in the selection of McCreery but simple justice has been done the man and the section of the State in which he resides. Senator McCreery is by right entitled to one of the Senators, and in McCreery we know we have one who is able, pure, and incorruptible.

Columbus Dispatch.

We did not support Mr. McCreery's claims as a candidate, but we lack no just admiration of his high qualities of head and heart. He is a very able man. He is a ripe scholar and a polished orator, and, withal, he is one of the purest men in the Republic. We well assured that his forthcoming term in the United States Senate will be a useful one to the State and to the nation; and we congratulate the people of Kentucky that they are to be represented by so worthy a public servant. Mr. McCreery now has an exalted mission to fill, and we know that the whole Commonwealth will cordially sustain him as a patriot and a statesman.—Bowling Green Democrat.

The many friends of Hon. Jas. B. Beck, who appreciate his great ability, his zeal and efficiency, deeply regret his failure to secure a seat in the United States Senate, but his defeat there are comforted by the reflection that his successful competitor is a gentleman whom the Democracy not only of Kentucky but of the entire country delight to honor. Hon. T. C. McCreery is a Democrat without guile, a patriot, a gentleman of great personal worth, of pure character and acknowledged ability.

FRANKFORT, PARIS, AND BIG SANDY RAILROAD.

By a vote of 3 to 11 the magistrates of Bourbon county have rejected the petition of the directors of the Frankfort, Paris, and Big Sandy Railroad Company. It was proposed to submit to a vote of the people the question of subscribing $400,000 in bonds to the company, $20,000 of which were to be payable on demand, $190,000 when the road was completed to the eastern limits of that county, and $190,000 when finished to the Big Sandy, or continuing with some line of railway to that point.

This action on the part of the Bourbon county court is selfish and inexcusable. But the friends of this enterprise, which is of vast and vital importance, do not propose to abandon it on account of this adverse action. The directors of the company will ask the Legislature to amend the charter as to require the local authorities to submit the question to the people.

It is believed that a large majority of the people of Bourbon county are in favor of this road, and yet they are even denied an expression of opinion upon the subject. It is a time honored principle, and a correct one, that the people shall rule, and it looks as if the Bourbon county magistrates were usurping a little authority in this matter. If a majority of the people of that county favor the enterprise, they should be permitted an expression of opinion at the polls. If they are opposed to it, they could vote it down, and there the matter would rest, for the present at least. To deny the people the right to speak upon any question, smacks very strongly of that Radical intolerance against which the majority of the people of Kentucky have been crying out so loudly. Let the popular will prevail—let the people be heard. This is Democratic doctrine—it is correct and just. The people make county magistrates; the latter are servants not masters, and they are ruling it with a high hand when they deny to the people the right to be heard. When such obstinacy, such shortsightedness, such narrow-mindedness of feeling and action manifests itself, it is time for higher authorities to interpose in behalf of the people and the public interest. If such action is to be the settled policy of the State, we may bid good-bye not only to railroad enterprises, but to all kinds of internal improvements.

DIED.

At the post hospital, in this city, at 9 P. M., December 27th, of inflammation of the stomach, died JOHN C. PERKINS, Company K, 4th U. S. Infantry, aged 37 years.

The deceased was a native of Sussex, England, and was enlisted at Louisville, Ky., on the 24th June, 1870. His remains were followed to the grave on Thursday last by Company K, the hearse being preceded by a guard of honor, with arms reversed, and by the regimental band. At the cemetery the burial service of the Protestant Episcopal Church was read by Rev. L. C. Lanes, Rector of Assension Church, and the body was consigned to its final resting place with the usual military honors.

THE TRI-WEEKLY YEOMAN.

SATURDAY DECEMBER 30, 1871.

Letters on business connected with the Yeoman office should, in all cases, be addressed to "Major & Johnston" instead of to either of the individual members of the firm.

Lost.—On Friday afternoon, between Dr. Mill's drug store and the residence of Joseph Rodman, Esq., a red Russia leather pocket-book, containing between eight and nine dollars. The finder will be suitably rewarded by leaving it at this office.

Lost.—Some person by mistake carried off a small two-bladed knife from the table of the editor in this office. The knife is of no value except as a souvenir from a departed friend. The finder will please return it to the cashier.

Persons indebted to Johnston & Mahoney will please call at their lumber-yard and settle their accounts.

THE METHUSEL OF THE WEST IS DEAD!—Harvey Thacker, a son-in-law of Daniel Boone, was born in Bannock county, North Carolina, somewhere about the year 1743—123 years ago—and yet, Harvey Thacker did not shuffle off the mortal coil then assumed until a few days ago. The Chico (Cal.) Review says that he died at the residence of his son Harvey, aged 70, in Shasta county, California, week before last. He is supposed to have been the oldest man in the United States, if not in the world. No mention is made of his life-record during the Revolutionary War, though he was just thirty-three years old when that war broke out; but, he is said to have served after he was 70, under Gen. Jackson at the battle of New Orleans, under Harrison at the battle of Tippecanoe; and also in the Black Hawk war in Illinois.

THE BARN ON THE HILL.—An anonymous writer has addressed a note to Judge Major, of our city, calling his attention to a notorious low brotch, kept in a brick house on the hill above the Arsenal, and to the fact that the inmates are in the habit of constantly insulting passers by, especially ladies. This is not the first time that these troublesome Pariahs have been complained of; but those who complain should remember that the Judge can do nothing until some one comes forward and puts his or her complaint in proper form. The anonymous writer referred to, threatens that, if something is not done within one week from December 29th, to remove or break up the brotch nuisance on the hill above the Arsenal, he will take the matter in his own hands. This is wrong; he should go before the Judge or some other magistrate and make oath to the facts detailed in his letter—the insults to his family, himself, and others—and then justice will be done, and the nuisance abated. This is the right way, and the only way that good citizens should countenance.

MASONIC.—Hiram Lodge, No. 4, of this city, met at their lodge-room, on St. Clair street, on Wednesday evening last, "St. John, the Evangelist's Day," and elected the following named officers for the ensuing year:

Bernard Jacoby, Worshipful Master.
Geo. E. Goodwin, Senior Warden.
Ephraim Whitesides, Junior Warden.
Walter Franklin, Treasurer.
Jos. B. Lewis, Secretary.
Daniel Epperson, Steward and Tyler.
The Senior and Junior Deacons have not yet been appointed.

By the-by, when is the project to be revived among the Masons of building a fine Masonic Temple in Frankfort? That it will be revived some day, who can doubt? Especially, when (as is stated by those who ought to know) it is known that the members of the Masonic fraternity here are peculiarly able to meet the expense of such an enterprise as those of any other single Lodge in the West.

RIVER AND STEAMBOAT NEWS.—Kentucky river is rising at this point, with full 5½ feet in the channel—that is to say, the water is that deep on the milt-sill of the lock just below Frankfort.

The Dove arrived on Thursday from Louisville, with a miscellaneous cargo, and will remain until the ice disappears from the Ohio river before she makes another trip.

The tow-boat, Dick Fulton, arrived Tuesday, with two barges of Canal—i. e., canal-coal (see Webster, Zell's Encyclopedia, &c.), which cost 35 cents a bushel in Covington, Ky., equal to 45 cents delivered here, but which is now being retailed to the citizens of Frankfort at 36 cents per bushel. The Fulton is also waiting for the ice to disappear in the Ohio before returning to Cincinnati.

THE COAL FAMINE.—Coal has been enormously high here in Frankfort now for some weeks, ranging from 35 to 42 cents per bushel. Very nearly the same prices have prevailed at Lexington and other interior cities and towns. It is to be hoped that the river will continue to rise until the coal boats from above can come down. Then coal will not only be cheapened by at least 33½ per cent, but we shall be supplied with a superior article.

During the past week we had the pleasure of meeting in the city General Foster of the U. S. Army, who came on a visit to his daughter, the wife of Lieutenant Eaton, of the 4th Infantry, stationed here. General Foster is one of the commission appointed to inspect the Suro tunnel and report in regard to its feasibility, an application being before Congress for the appropriation of five or six millions for its completion. It is understood that the commission will report adversely.

WHO WANTS TO BUILD?—Persons desiring to improve their town or country places with elegant residences, or other buildings of whatever kind, will read the advertisement of Mr. John Haly with interest. Mr. Haly is widely known as a popular contractor and builder, and, having determined to return to Frankfort permanently after the 11th January, offers his services to the public generally.

CRUEL ACCIDENT.—A most cruel and distressing accident happened on Christmas day near Greensburg, Greene county, in this State, by which Mr. John Rodman, Jr., son of Dr. Hugh Rodman, of this city, received a shocking and most painful wound. An over-loaded shot-gun, in the hands of a careless young man of the place, was fired just outside the house wherein Mr. Rodman was sitting with his comrades of the corps of civil engineers, who are engaged in surveying the route for the extension of the Lebanon Branch Railroad in that vicinity. The gun exploded and a large, sharp piece of the barrel, six or seven inches long, passing through the window-sash and facing, struck Mr. Rodman in the mouth and, ranging downward, knocked out several of his teeth, broke his jaw-bone, and penetrated his neck within an eighth of an inch of the carotid artery. With great coolness and presence of mind, Mr. Rodman himself laid hold of the murderous missile and drew it forth from its sensitive and bloody lodgement. Moreover, his jaw being dislocated, and no skilled surgical assistance to be had in that region, he was forced to readjust it without help. A more grievous, cruel wound is hard to imagine. A telegraphic dispatch to this city informed Mr. Rodman's father of his sad mishap, and his brother, Dr. Wm. B. Rodman, at once repaired to Greensburg, and on Thursday they returned together to this city. The wound though exceedingly and even agonizingly painful, he bears with that stoical patience and apparent indifference which has ever marked his demeanor on similar occasions of extreme physical suffering. When he arrived here he had been unable to swallow any food for two days, and since his arrival he is compelled to lie on his back and himself pump beef-tea—his only food—into his stomach with one of Davidson's instruments. Mr. Rodman is a large, finely developed man, over six feet high, and weighs over 220 pounds. Dr. Rodman is of opinion that the vigor of his constitution will insure his speedy recovery.

Strange to relate, the criminally careless young fellow who fired the bursting gun escaped without injury from the explosion. And, it is next to certain that if the force of the missile had not been considerably broken by passing through a thick window frame, Mr. Rodman must have been killed instantly.

THE STUDENT'S DREAM and other Poems. By HOWARD MILLER.

The above is the title of a very beautiful little volume just issued by J. P. Morton & Co., of Louisville, in a style in all respects equal to the best holiday books of the eastern publishers. It contains, besides the poem from which the volume takes its name, twenty-five or thirty short poetic compositions upon various subjects, and about the same number of sonnets. The author, in whom we recognize an old friend of our youth, presents his little offering with no flourish of preface, and contents himself with a single dedication of four lines to his wife. The same sentiment which inspired this mark of affection pervades the whole book; and one cannot read it without feeling that every line is the production of one who has found his poetic inspiration in the happiness of his former home and his domestic fireside. The work is full of the evidences of scholarly taste and that elevated love of nature which best finds utterance in verse. We are indebted to the publishers for a copy.

THE WEATHER.—Wednesday and Thursday last were almost as cold as any days of the season so far. The ponds in the vicinity, but not the streams, were frozen over sufficiently for the purposes of the skater. But, on Thursday night, the weather moderated, and a considerable rain fell during the night, making yesterday particularly sloppy and disagreeable, as well as dark, cloudy, and threatening all day. Last evening, at 7 o'clock, before moonrise, the air was densely charged with smoke and a drizzling rain falling, with the thermometer up in the fifties. What a climate!

In our notice of the Christmas Tree to the Sunday School children of Ascension Church at Major Hall on Tuesday last, we inadvertently omitted to state that among those who kindly assisted in the distribution of the presents from the stage were Mr. J. A CARD FROM A. W. HARPER.

Having lately been apprised that some evil disposed persons, have, in an irresponsible manner, propagated a false and slanderous accusation against me, making the impression upon the minds of some persons that I am guilty of the murder of Jacob and Elizabeth Harper, I have thought proper, in order to correct the slander, to submit to the public the following proof of my innocence:

The affiant, Marcus E. Poynter, consenting and waving all objections to irregularity and informality in the taking of this ex parte affidavit, states that he is 35 years old; resides in Woodford county, and is by occupation a physician; that he was called to see Jacob and Miss Betsy Harper on the Monday of September 11, 1871; that being the morning after their murder; his call was made about 7 A. M. From the appearance of the bodies of said persons, he thinks the murder must have been done early in the preceding night, and he is satisfied it could not have been done later than 12 o'clock of the preceding night, and further sayeth not the affiant.

M. E. POYNTER.
Sworn to before me this, 25th day of December, 1871.
W. L. JETT, Examiner, F. C.

The affiant, Thos. H. Bedford, states that he is a resident of Woodford county, Ky., and by occupation he is a farmer; that he is 29 years of age. He states that on the 10th day of September, 1871, he was at Jacob Harper's, that being the place where Jacob Harper and his sister Betsy were killed on the night of said 10th of September; that he arrived at said Jacob Harper's between 10 and 11 o'clock of said day, and remained there till 3 P. M., when he left there in company with A. W. Harper, and went with said Harper to near Alexander's peach orchard, about one and a half or two miles from Jacob Harper's; A. W. Harper was then on his way home, and the road he and affiant traveled was the direct road to his (A. W. Harper's) home; affiant left him near Alexander's peach orchard about 3:15 P. M., and as he (affiant) came back home he came by Jacob Harper's, and called for his wife's sister and brother, and took them home with him; he (affiant) then saw Jacob Harper; he thinks he came out in the porch or to the block, he don't remember which; this was about 4 P. M. On that day affiant, Jacob Harper, and A. W. Harper made an arrangement for Jacob Harper to go to Lexington on Tuesday, as he was anxious to go to Lexington on that day to see to his (Harper's) uncle Jacob's and how they were. He (Harper) said that his uncle Jacob was pretty well, and his aunt Betsy was poorly. He (affiant) asked him if "Longfellow" would run Tuesday, and he said that his uncle Jacob said "he would run certain," and that he (Harper) had made arrangements to go up and take his uncle Jacob to Lexington. He (affiant) left him (A. W. Harper) at Spring Station depot between four and five o'clock.

W. L. JETT, Examiner.

The affiant, James Blackburn, waving all informality in this ex parte affidavit, states that on Sunday, that being the day before the murder of Jacob and Betsy Harper, he saw A. W. Harper on the road near Spring Station; he (affiant) rode with him from his (Blackburn's) gate to Spring Station, a distance of 50 yards. He (affiant) asked him if he had been to his (Harper's) uncle Jacob's, and how they were. He (Harper) said that his uncle Jacob was pretty well, and his aunt Betsy was poorly. He (affiant) asked him if "Longfellow" would run Tuesday, and he said that his uncle Jacob said "he would run certain," and that he (Harper) had made arrangements to go up and take his uncle Jacob to Lexington. He (affiant) left him (A. W. Harper) at Spring Station depot between four and five o'clock.

JAMES BLACKBURN.

The affiant, Lewis Ferguson, states that he is 41 years of age; his residence is in Woodford county, Kentucky; by occupation he is a farmer; that he saw Mr. A. W. Harper on the evening of September 10th, 1871; that it was about five o'clock when he first saw him; he remembers the day more particularly from it being the day of the murder of Jacob and Betsy Harper. He thinks he conversed with Mr. A. W. Harper from one half to three quarters of an hour, and separated from him when the sun was about one half hour high. Harper was going in the direction of home, and asked affiant to go home with him. He (Harper) said he had been to his uncle Jacob Harper's, to make arrangements to go with him to Lexington on Tuesday to see Longfellow run. He said he was to go to his uncle Jacob's Monday evening, so as to be able to start to Lexington early Tuesday morning. When he asked affiant to go home with him, he (affiant) told him (A. W. Harper) he would if he (A. W. Harper) would go to Providence Church with him that night. He (A. W. Harper) said he could not go because he was unwell, and was then suffering from a severe headache. When affiant left for home, he left Mr. A. W. Harper with Mr. John Crutcher, at the gate to his (Crutcher's) residence.

The affiant, John H. Crutcher, states that he is 51 years of age; that he is a resident of Franklin county, and by occupation a farmer. He saw A. W. Harper the evening before the murder of Jacob and Betsy Harper, that being Sunday evening; he saw said A. W. Harper when the sun was about one half hour high; he saw him at the gate to his (affiant's) residence; at the time he saw him Mr. Lewis Ferguson was with him; Harper said he had been to his uncle Jacob's, and had made arrangements to take him to Lexington on Monday to see "Longfellow" run; he left him (affiant) a little after sundown; he (Harper) went in the direction of home; Mr. Ferguson left Harper and affiant in company; he left about one half hour before Harper left; he went in the direction of home; it is about one mile and a half from affiant's house to A. W. Harper's.

JOHN H. CRUTCHER.

The affiant, Robert Anderson, states that he is a resident of Franklin county, Ky.; he is 52 years of age, and by occupation a farmer. He says he saw A. W. Harper in his yard on Sunday evening, the day of the murder of Jacob and Betsy Harper. Affiant does not remember the day of the week or month, but fixes the day from the murder of Jacob and Betsy Harper. He saw A. W. Harper about 7 P. M.; it was pretty dark; he had a conversation with A. W. Harper; talked with him about Longfellow running on Tuesday. A. W. Harper said he had been to Jacob Harper's, and was on his way home from there; his road home was through affiant's yard; affiant let down a pair of bars for him (A. W. H.); and he went in the direction of home; it is about one mile from affiant's house to A. W. Harper's, and about ten miles from A. W. Harper's to Jacob Harper's, he is not certain as to distance, but it is between ten and twelve miles; some of the road is rough and some smooth; and there are some ten or fifteen gates on said road.

ROBT. ANDERSON.
Sworn to before me, December 28th, 1871.
W. L. JETT, Examiner.

The affiant, Alphonso Anderson, states that he is a resident of Franklin county; that he is 21 years of age, and by occupation he is a farmer. He states that he was present on Friday, the 8th of September, 1871, when Jacob Harper (deceased) had a conversation with John Harper, Jr. He told said John Harper, Jr., to tell his father, A. W. Harper, to come up to his house on Sunday, to make arrangements to take him to the races in Lexington on Tuesday; that he had sold his buggy horse, and he wanted A. W. Harper to furnish a horse for him to drive. He (the affiant) states that he went to the house of A. W. Harper on the 8th of September, and told him (A. W. Harper) what he had heard Jacob Harper tell his (A. W. Harper's) son on that day. On the night of September 10th, affiant was at Providence Church, and on his way home he passed by the yard fence of A. W. Harper, and he there saw Mr. A. W. Harper; he was stooping in the corner of the fence. He (Harper) spoke to me (affiant), and asked me to come with him (affiant) is certain about it being A. W. Harper. The time of night was about 10 o'clock, it could not have been far from that time. While he was talking to Mr. Harper, he (Harper) was buttoning up his pants. It is about one mile from A. W. Harper's to his (affiant's) house. He (affiant) states that it is between ten and twelve miles from A. W. Harper's to Jacob Harper's, and he is acquainted with the road; some of the road is rough; and there is about 12 or 15 gates between said places; it would take at least one hour and a half to ride in a gallop from A. W. Harper's to Jacob Harper's.

ALPHONSO ANDERSON.

W. L. JETT, Examiner.

The affiant, John W. Harper, states that he is 22 years of age; that he resides in Franklin county, and by occupation he is a farmer. He states that Sunday night, September 10th, 1871, he was in Frankfort, Ky., where he had gone in company with Jo. Duval to see some ladies; he and Duval went to Frankfort about 3 P. M.; he left his horse at the Forks of Elkhorn, and went to Frankfort in a buggy with Jo. Duval; affiant and Duval remained in Frankfort till a little after 12 o'clock at night; he heard the clock strike twelve while they were getting their horse to leave; when they got to the Forks of Elkhorn he there got his saddle horse, and came home alone; he got to his father's house (A. W. Harper's) between 1 and 1½ A. M.; when he got home he was asked to go to bed and his father (A. W. Harper) came to the door, and let him in. Affiant is certain as to the facts stated, and fixes the time certainly, because it was the night of the murder of Jacob and Betsy Harper. Affiant states that he saw his uncle Jacob Harper in Frankfort, Ky., on Friday the 8th of September, 1871, and he (Jac. Harper) told affiant to tell his father (A. W. Harper) to come up Sunday, and make arrangements to take him (Jac. Harper) to Lexington, Ky., on Tuesday (Sept. 12th), to see Longfellow run; affiant was in company with Alphonso Anderson when Jacob Harper told him what to tell his father; affiant told his father, when he got home, what his uncle Jacob had said. He says it is ten or eleven miles from his father's to Jacob Harper's; some bad road, and ten or fifteen gates between said places. Affiant states that Jacob Harper told him to tell his father to bring a horse to drive him to Lexington, as he had sold his buggy horse. Affiant says when he came on Monday, to tell of the murder, he was at the blacksmith shop, where he had gone, by direction of his father, to have a horse shod for him to drive his uncle Jacob Harper.

Harper to see some ladies; affiant left the Forks of Elkhorn with John W. Harper to go to Frankfort about 3½ P. M.; John W. Harper left his horse at the Forks of Elkhorn, and went with affiant in his buggy to Frankfort; he went with affiant in company with said John W. Harper some time after 9 o'clock at night; he is not certain as to exact time he left Frankfort; when they arrived at Forks of Elkhorn, John W. Harper went in the direction of his (John W. Harper's) home; affiant fixes the time by his recollection of the murder of Jacob and Betsy Harper.

The affiant, John Starnes, states that he is 22 years of age; resides in Franklin county, and amby occupation a farm hand; that he was at A. W. Harper's the day before the murder of Jacob and Betsy Harper; that he was then in the company of A. W. Harper; that Mr. A. W. Harper came home on the evening before the murder, about dark; he told affiant to take his horse and feed it, and leave the door open so the horse could come out after eating and get grass; affiant did as directed. He states that there were no horses in the stable that night; the horse rode on that day by Mr. Harper was out next morning; affiant drove it up to morning with the other horses, and it appeared to him to be better during the previous night; remember that day because it was Sunday and the day before the murder of Jacob and Betsy Harper; a horse came next morning from Jacob Harper's and told of the murder; he saw Mr. Harper at his house about 8½ P. M.; he staid at A. W. Harper's that night; affiant saw Mr. Harper next morning about sun-up, when he told me to get up the horse, as he was to be taken to the shop to be shod; when Mr. John Harper came back from the shop he was with him that brought the news of the murder.

JOHN STARNES.
Sworn to before me, December 28th, 1871.

The affiant, Violet Banks, states she is about 35 years of age; she resides at Mr. A. W. Harper's, and, by occupation, is a cook. She states that she was at A. W. Harper's on Sunday, the day before the murder of Jacob and Betsy Harper. Mr. A. W. Harper came home that day about dark. He told John Starnes to put up his horse and feed him, and leave the door open so he could come out after eating to get grass. She saw Mr. Harper one hour and a half after dark that night. I remember the night because it was the night of the murder of Jacob and Betsy Harper. The boy came early next morning and told of the murder. She states she saw Mr. Harper next morning, between daylight and sun-up. When she first saw him next morning he was telling the boy to get up the horse, to be taken to the shop.

THE SECRET OF CAPTIVATION.—Features of Grecian mould, a well-turned neck and beautifully rounded arms, are no doubt very nice things to have, and ladies who possess these charms have reason to be thankful to Mother Nature; yet, after all, the most captivating of all womanly charms is a pure, fresh, and brilliant complexion. This superlative fascination any lady may secure by using HAZEN'S MAGNETIC FLAX, the standard beautifying preparation of the present age. It differs from all ordinary cosmetics in three most essential particulars, inasmuch as it contains no injurious ingredients, does not contract or shrivel the skin as all the astringent "blooms," "lotions," and "powders" eventually do, but produces a lasting loveliness by improving the health of the skin. Under its operation the texture of the epidermis becomes finer, and the surface soft as velvet and smooth as porcelain. Features cannot be changed, but complexions can, and it is quite certain that a lady with no other charm than a fresh and rosy complexion, will attract more admiration in company than her neighbor with a classic face but a sallow skin.

THERE IS ROOM AT THE TOP.
They say the professions are crowded
By seekers for fame and for bread;
That the members are pushing each other
As close as their footsteps can tread.
But be not discouraged, my brother,
Nor suffer exertion to stop,
Though thousands are pressing around you,
There is plenty of room at the top.

Be true to thy love and thy country—
The dastard wins never a prize;
But the earnest are ever the victors,
And he who on justice relies,
Who wins the good opinion of labor,
Will garner sweet rest as his crop.
And find, as the hills sink behind him,
That there's room enough at the top.

Oh! let not the evil disturb you,
There's room if you but search it out;
Make pure thy own conscience, my brother,
See mind what the rest are about;
Answering your work may have fallen
In slumber, or office, or shop,
Remember the low grounds are crowded,
But there's always room at the top.

The Flies and the Spiders.

"Why has God created the flies and the spiders?" a young prince often said to himself; "such insects are of no use to man, and had I the power I would cause them to disappear from the earth."

One day, during the war, this prince was obliged to flee before the enemy. At night, being very much fatigued, he lay down under a tree in the middle of a forest, and soon fell fast asleep. He was discovered by one of the enemy's soldiers, who glided softly up to him, sword in hand, intending to kill him. At this moment, a fly suddenly alighted on the cheek of the prince, and stung him so sharply that he awoke. He started up, drew his sword, and fought with the soldier, and at last escaped. Then the prince went and hid himself in a cavern of the same forest. During the night, a spider spun her thread across the entrance. Two soldiers, who were in search of the fugitive prince, came so near the cave that he could hear their conversation.

"Look," said one, "no doubt he is hidden here."
"No," replied the other, "he could not have entered without tearing down that spider's web."

As soon as they were gone, the prince crept out with emotion, raising his hands to heaven, "Oh, my God! what gratitude do I not owe thee? Thou didst save my life yesterday by means of a fly, and today thou hast preserved me by means of a spider. Truly, there are use and purpose in all the works of thy creation!"

Be Gentle at Home.

There are few families, we imagine, any where, in which love is not abused as furnishing the license for impoliteness. A husband, father, or brother, will speak harsh words to those he loves best, simply because the security of love and family pride keeps him from getting his head broken. It is a shame that a man will speak more than impolitely, at times, to his wife or sister, than any other female except a low and vicious one. It is thus the hottest affections of a man's nature prove to be a weaker protection to a woman in the family circle than the restraints of society; and that a woman usually is indebted for the kindness and politeness of things to those not of her own household. Things ought not to be so. The man, who, because it will not be resented, invests his spleen and bad temper upon those of his own household, is a small coward and a mean man. Kind words are circulating mediums between true gentlemen and ladies at home, and no polish exhibited in society can atone for the harsh language and disrespectful treatment too often indulged in between those bound together by God's own tie of blood, and still more sacred bonds of conjugal love.

How to Treat Frost-Bitten Pear Trees.
Pear trees which have been much injured by frost had better be cut back to some bud or buds, near the stem or ground, not going below the grafted part; then wrap with cotton cloth, dipped in grafting wax, from the ground up, leaving the buds only out. This covering may be left on until the following spring, or removed the latter part of the summer. If the cloth is applied early, even though the sapwood should be very much discolored, the sap will push through, and during the summer a new layer of wood will form over the discolored part; for this reason do not cut down the injured trees, but wrap them up to some live bud, and the probability is all will come out right in the fall. This treatment will also answer for other kind of trees.

To Cure a Felon.—As soon as the parts begin to swell get the tincture of lobelia and wrap the part affected with a cloth thoroughly saturated with the tincture, and the felon is dead. An old physician says he has known it to cure scores of cases, and it never fails if applied in season.—Journal of Medicine.

Another.—Take common salt, such as is used for salting down pork or beef, dry it in an oven, then pound it fine and mix with spirits of turpentine in equal parts. Put in a rag, and wrap around the part affected, and as it gets dry put on more, and in twenty-four hours you are cured; the felon is dead.

The preciousness of little things was never more beautifully expressed than by B. F. Taylor, in the following: "Little words are the sweetest to hear; little charities fly furthest, and stay longest on the wing; little flatters are the stillest; little hearts are the fullest, and little farms are the best filled. Little books are the most read, and little songs the most loved. And when nature would make any thing specially rare and beautiful, she makes it little—little pearls, little diamonds, little dews. Everybody calls that little which he loves best on earth."

A negro member of the Texas Legislature was not long ago on the streets with a large roll of greenbacks in his hand, looking at him, and eackling so loud that he attracted the attention of a bystander, who said to him: "What are you laughing at, Jim?" Jim replied: "You see that money?" "Yes," "Well, boss, I just got that for my vote, I've been bought four or five times in my life, but this is the first time I ever got de cash myself!"

Mark Twain produces one of the most striking cases of meanness on record. He says he knows of an incorporated society which hired a man to blast a rock, and he was punching powder in with a crowbar, when a percussion explosion followed, sending the man and crowd out of sight. Both came down again all right, and the man went to work again promptly. But though he was gone only fifteen minutes, the company "docked him for lost time."

A lady says engagements are very unsatisfactory sort of affairs; for, if you are not very polite and attractive the gentleman thinks you do not care for him, and you are afraid to be polite for fear the engagement might some time be broken off, when you would be sorry to think you had staid so much time on some other woman's husband.
